The most fondest memory I had of him was when I got a whipping from Grandma Lillian because we weren't supposed to be playing up there on the side of the house by Freddie Love's cafe on the other side of Aunt Mary and Uncle Josh's house but dumb me listening to him and went up there anyways because he obviously liked somebody up that way and I think Grandma Lillian knew about it because where we were she couldn't see us but the way her house was set up there were windows on the south side of the house and she would always sit at the end of the table between the kitchen and the living room.. so that's why she couldn't see us but she could hear everything.. the windows were kinda high up.. and she heard Pumpkin cursing because he's thinking if she can't see us then she don't know where we were... He goes on talking about he thinks Grandma Lillian has bionic eyes like Superman and she walked up on us with that belt... He told me it really didn't hurt him because he had on thick clothes just for that reason because he was used to getting whippings... I wasn't. He said he just acted like it hurted so she'll stop hitting him... It worked because she stopped hitting him and started hitting me... That's when I packed up my dolls and my play house and moved back in with my momma..😭

But we were kids... We didn't stay mad at each other long..
